Duty.

The sweetest lives are those to duty wed.

Whose deeds, both great and small,
Are close knit strands of an unbroken thread.

Where love ennobles all,
The world may sound no trumpet,

ring no bells;
The book of life the shining record tells.

Thy love shall chant its own beautiful tunes

After its own life-working. A child's kiss

Set on thy singing lips shall make these glad;

A poor man served by thee shall make thee rich;

A sick man helped by thee shall make thee strong;

Thou shalt be served thyself by every sense

Of service which thou renderest.
—Drowning.

Saturday evening there was not standing room at the Majestic. The Misses Hunter are putting on some of the newest films of the season and on this occasion "The Bride in White" was the attraction. It was fine and true to nature. Three times a week the films are changed.

Every seat in the First Presbyterian church was taken last evening and there was not even standing room in the vestibule. A sacred concert had been announced under the leadership of Miss Hanna. The best talent of the city took part. Mrs. E. E. Gullott, Mrs. J. C. Murphy, Miss Hanna gave voice numbers. Master Lon Frame, perhaps the youngest soloist in the town, sang and captivated the entire audience. He is wonderfully talented. Rev. Weith delivered an interesting address.

Mrs. Hal Cannon who was so seriously injured some time ago near Gainesville, was brought home from that place last Thursday. Her many friends here are glad to have her with them but are grieved that she is still confined to her bed.

Miss Lavene Woods came up from Marietta and spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Woods.

The Chrysanthemum show is quite taking the attention of the flower growers of the city and it has been the means of many putting forth an extra effort in seeing what could be done by a little cultivation. Mrs. J. M. London in Ferndale has, it is said, one of the largest collections and more varieties than any one in the town. It is well worth your while when out to drive by and see what can be done by a little care and cultivation. Mrs. J. A. Riven at her Har Grove Heights home also has a showing of Autumn Queen blossoms which reflects credit to any one.

This flower show will, no doubt, be a success from start to finish, coming as it does under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. ladies who have never yet learned the meaning of the word failure.

In Fort Wayne, Ind., there is an organization for the training of housewives. It pays attention to all sorts of domestic science work, and by it all the members of the family learn something. It is under the direction of the club women of that city.

In some of the eastern hospitals Indian girls are taking courses in nursing, and are said to make the best kind of nurses. Application was made to Commissioner F. E. Leupp, and he was very much in favor of the graduates of Carlisle and other schools entering training schools for nurses, as many of them were better fitted for that work than for positions as stenographers, teachers and other employments open to them.

How the clubwomen of Terre Haute enforce the pure food law was the subject of an interesting report at the Indiana Federation recently. Officers of the club organization of the city visit all the places where food is sold and make out a white list. These cards are placed in the windows of places in the list, and only these places are patronized by clubwomen. The consequence is that most of the houses in the town try to come up to the standards set by the clubwomen.

The Oklahoma City Times has the following complimentary article concerning Mrs. F. E. Riddle, of Chickasha, who was a candidate for the presidency of the Oklahoma Federation:

Mrs. Riddle is one of the most capable and energetic club workers, and was kept very busy during the last session of the legislature, when under her direction the club women fostered many measures, among those being incorporated in the laws of the new state being the compulsory education bill, more stringent marriage laws, and the pure food, dairy and drug law. She suggested that all efforts of the federation this year be concentrated on three bills, the child labor law, which was passed last year but vetoed by the governor, the industrial school and juvenile court bills. Mrs. Riddle suggested that the club women write her for copies of those bills so that they may be read and discussed in the clubs and all pressure possible brought to bear to advance their passage.

Queer Things in Clothes.
Skirts cut to inseam in front with trains.
Coats longer in back than front.
Entirely different sleeves in one gown.

Tucks running six ways on one frock.
Guimpes entirely one-sided and made of three materials.
Hats that cover the head and hair.
A black carrying and a pink one worn at the same time.

"As You Like It."
There is a treat in store for theatre goers on tomorrow evening and especially for those interested in Shakespeare's comedies. May Stewart will be at the Robinson theatre in "As You Like It."

Press notices give her quite a puff and this is a pleasing comedy full of the light side of life. Ardmore once had a Shakespeare class and this writer of old is still feature study of all the literary clubs and his plays have always received a hearty welcome.

"The Wolf."

When "The Wolf" comes to the Robinson opera house Saturday, November 14th, the audience will be invited to follow the author and the actors up into the Canadian Hudson Bay country. The play is a melodrama in three acts and deals with the deceiving of a girl and subsequent avenging by her brother according to the rough but thoroughly human ethics of that wild country. The girl has disappeared, and the name of her betrayer is unknown, but on his deathbed, the father commands the girl's half-brother, Jules, to seek out the girl and care for her. Jules finds in his search that the girl has met voluntary death in a storm, so he sets out to find the man and locate him in the home of a Scotch trader. The plot embraces many other varied incidents, with another more savory love affair, and with the comedy interests well represented, it is said. The end is as it should be, logically and melodramatically just as most theatre-goers demand that a play shall be if its sponsors would have it successful. The company is headed by Andrew Robson who will be seen in his much-talked-of characterization of Jules Beaubien, the heroic French Canadian, a romantic role of the style in which Mr. Robson has won his brightest laurels in the past.

Southern Man For Presidency.

(By H. H. Allen of Davis)

Editor Ardmoreite:

Fellow beaten democrats, we were knocked out of the ring and slightly disfigured, but we will be able to come again in four years with renewed efforts and energy, with the old-time southern democracy, tariff for revenue only, with equal rights to all and special privileges to none. We will have a truly born southern man at the head of the ticket. We have tried the west and east for a winner, seemingly they can't hold even the solid south. A southern man can and if that is all we can carry let's give it to our own southland. This is said with all respect to our own W. J. Bryan, for I believe him to be the greatest statesman America has ever produced. I note on your headline that we will send Gore back to the senate. I am proud of that. Seemingly a blind man runs best; so we had better run him next time for president. He surely deserves the goods. He is indeed a wonder! Just think at this state of political graft and money power, of sending a blind man to the United States senate—certainly the people rule in Oklahoma.
